We would like to report on the changes we have made during the year with our good neighbors

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to our members for being good neighbors.

Thanks to your valuable attention and participation, Good Neighbors was able to bring good changes to marginalized neighbors around the world last year. In 2017, we were more busier than ever, responding sensitively to social change and various issues. In particular, due to the emphasis on accountability and transparency of NGOs, Good Neighbors strived to conduct business and operate organizations based on strict principles and standards. We send you the annual report on the results and performances of our valuable work.

As a private organization that has played a leading role in establishing the Korean child protection system, our organization emphasizes the importance of providing services and case management in the field of Child-Abuse and applies the 'Good Neighbors Child Protection Integrated Support Professional Service' model nationwide. We worked to prevent relapse of child abuse and restore family function. In addition, we carried out a campaign for children in crisis homes in Korea to present hope to many children with the participation of good neighbors.

In overseas business sites, based on years of experience and business expertise, we have served as a global NGO together with a diversified network of governments, international organizations, etc. In addition to discovering innovative business models that are differentiated to meet the needs of children and local communities, we have strived to establish a virtuous cycle of the local economy by improving the quality of our products and establishing distribution systems. We hope that Good Neighbors' professional business and close cooperation will lead to sustainable development that encompasses children and communities.

This year, Good Neighbors will carry out its business transparently and sincerely on the side of marginalized neighbors at home and abroad. We will do our best to confirm the valuable results of our good neighbors by conducting researches and conducting researches by field. We thank you for your generous faith and encouragement, and we look forward to your support for better future change. Thank you.

Chairman, Good Neighbors

Expanding Services for Abused Children and Families

In 2017, we provided psychological tests, psychotherapy, counseling, and medical services for abused children and their families, while conducted psychological tests and treatments of abusers due to the increase in court orders that the abusers shall take psychotherapy. Efforts were made to reduce the risk of domestic abuse and to establish a stable parenting environment.

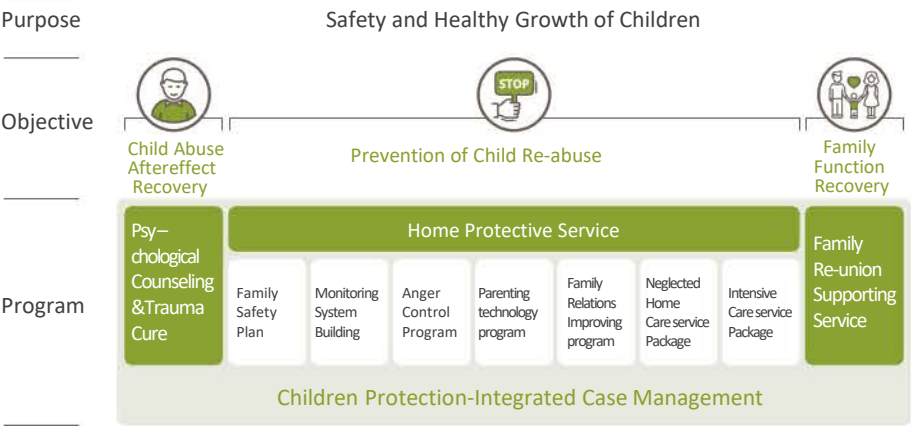

Nationalization of Child Protection Integrated Support Professional Services

Good Neighbors, which has played a leading role in establishing the Korean child protection system, has developed the first child protection integrated professional service model in 2015 to strengthen the service expertise of child protection agencies. The child protection integrated support professional service went through a pilot project in 2016 and was distributed in 2017 to be applied by child protection agencies nationwide. Currently, we are conducting longitudinal studies of service effectiveness evaluations with nine professional researchers, and we will improve and develop the service model to enable more professional and effective case management in the field.

Process of Applying Child-Protection Integrated Support Professional Service

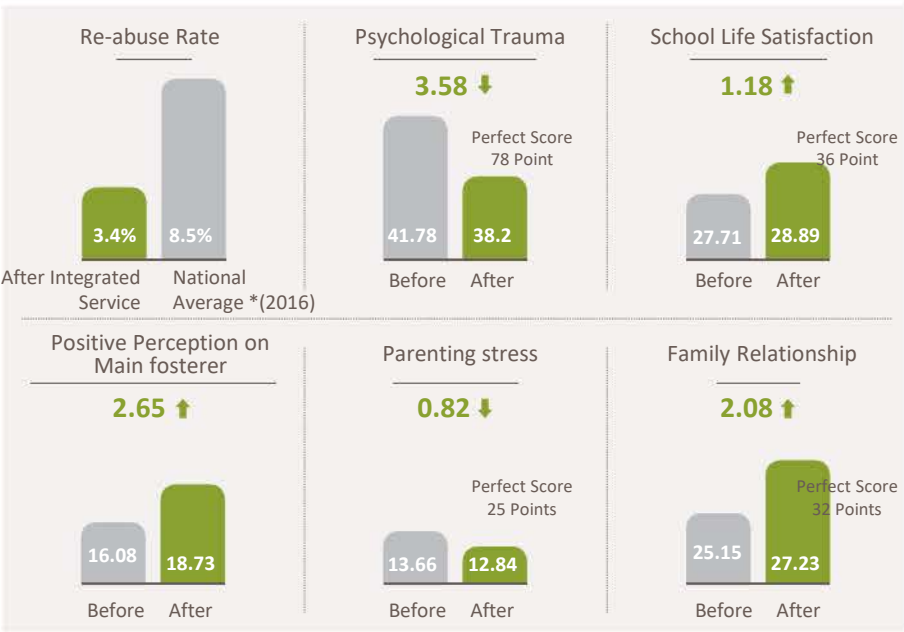

Program Configuration

Application result of integrated child protection professional support service

We provided original family protection services, psychological counseling and trauma treatment, and family reunion services to abused children and their families. The primary follow-up survey was conducted on 537 families and 733 children. As a result, we found that children's psychological trauma was restored, their satisfaction with school life improved, and their perception of a main fosterer changed positively. In addition, 2.35 times lower rate of re-abuse was reported in families who received services due to reduced parenting stress and improved family relationships .

* Based on the 2016 National Child Abuse Status Report

Overcame the pain of abuse and got back into the family

Jinsol (a pseudonym, 15 years old) who suffered severe delusions from schizophrenia prevented Jinsol from going to school and left it in a house full of rubbish. After filing a report of child abuse, the child protection agency decided that his mother's behavior was as a type of child abuse, and Jinsol was living in a temporary care facility away from his parents.

While Jin-sol was safely protected at the facility, Good Neighbors provided the necessary professional services for each family member. Jin-sol received psychotherapy and overcame the psychological aftereffect of abuse, and his mother received regular psychiatric treatment to treat schizophrenia, the major cause of neglect. His father promised to participate in parenting skills programs to learn desirable parental roles and appropriate parenting styles, and to actively participate in parenting as well as managing his mother's treatment. Jin-sol's family also participated in family meetings and outings to restore family relationships. After six months of evaluating family reunion, Jin-sol was able to return back to his parents' arms. Good Neighbors has been conducting case management once a week for home visits and monitors abuse.

“ The Good Neighbors Child Protection Integrated Support Professional Service not only involves children, but also encourages parents who were abusers to learn the right parenting methods and practice them in their daily lives so that children can be protected in safe homes. Jinsol is living safely withhis parents. We plans to use community resources and monitor Jinsol regularly so that he can grow healthy. ”

Support for Crisis Home

Good Neighbors conducts the Crisis Home Child Support Project to identify children in crisis such as poverty, starvation, and neglect, and to build a social safety network for their safety and healthy growth. In 2017, we provided livelihood, residential, medical, and educational support for children who were introduced through online campaigns and those who needed local help.

After the Campaign, Children who found Hope

In 2017, we supported the healthy growth of girls from low-income families through the campaign “Girls, You Are the Twinkling Stars,” and called the public’s attention to protecting abused children through the “Spring, Again” campaign. In addition, campaigns such as “Fly Hope” and “MBC Love Plus”, TV programs, gathered the hands of neighbors, gave hope to children in crisis families, including children whose stories were introduced.

Domestic Girl Support Campaign 'Girl, You are a Twinkling Star'

Eun-ji (a pseudonym, 13 years old) living alone with her father was struggling with changes in her body that came with puberty. The cost of buying a sanitary napkin came at an economic burden, and there were no grown-ups around to talk about unfamiliar changes.

Good Neighbors launched a campaign for girls who are struggling like Eunji. With the warm interest and sharing of 7,219 good neighbors, Eun-ji also met a mentor who could support her and share her concerns. In addition to Eunji, female sanitary products and underwear that can be used for six months were provided to 3,300 children from low-income families who needed help. We also provided counseling, family programs, financial support, and mentoring services to help children grow up healthy.

Hye-jung (a pseudonym, 2 years old) is called her mother's name as she was abandoned at birth in the hospital without a name. Hye-jung who was born prematurely and had congenital heart disease and pulmonary atresia, had to endure six surgeries alone. After being introduced to the public through the campaign, Good Neighbors supported medical expenses for inpatient service and surgeries under her name and proceeded the birth notification process. After getting healthier, Hyejung is now in a temporary care facility and is receiving medication and regular medical care. Good Neighbors will continue to provide long-term support through case management to help Hyejeong grow healthy.

Crisis home child Support Campaign “Fly Hope”

Caring her mother who had difficulty in moving due to complications of diabetes was responsible for Yu Jung (a pseudonym, 12 years old). Frequent absences and lateness due to nursing care, overdue hospital bills and utility bills, and mother's health condition not getting better were the service reality for the 12-year-old Yoo-jung, who still needs care. After being introduced through the campaign, Good Neighbors supported urgent living expenses and Yoo-Jung's education expenses. In addition, Good Neighbors provided expenses for a caregiver and medical treatment for her mother to make her focus on her school life. Thanks to this, Yoo-Jung was elected as the president of the student council and enjoyed her school life more than anyone else.

Check out the good changes that came after the campaigns.

Sharing Character Education

Helping Children to grow together as global citizens

Various sharing character education and sharing campaigns were held to help children and adolescents grow into global citizens living with their neighbors around the world. In 2017, we took a leading role in forming an environment where children and adolescents can create healthy peer relationships by linking school violence prevention education and action campaigns. In addition, we have expanded the NGO activist program nationwide to help children grow into a global leader.

Effect of School Violence Prevention Education

While the importance of sharing character education as fundamental solution for school violence is continuously emphasized, we have conducted school violence prevention education so that students can become active defenders who sympathize with the sufferings of victims, not bystanders in the context of school violence. As a result of examining the effectiveness of education for children in grades 4-6 from 52 schools who participated in school violence prevention education in 2017, it is found that social interaction ability increased while bystander attitude decreased.

Change before and after participation in school violence prevention education

* Social interaction capabilities: The ability to practice respect, communication and consideration in interPeopleal relationships
* A bystander 's attitude: Not actively participating in bullying, but pretending not to know and neglecting intervention

Previously, I wasn't interested in seeing friends who were being bullied. I was afraid that if I could help him, I would be bullied. Now I'll be brave without pretending not to know my suffering friend. And I promised not to say or do anything that hurts my friend.

Expanding NGO activist program nationwide for global citizenship education

The Global Citizenship Education NGO Activist Program, developed in 2016, was expanded nationwide in 2017 to help children and youth explore new careers based on their understanding of NGO activists. It was shown that program satisfaction of 4th to 6th grade elementary school students from 36 schools and 3,422 people who participated in Global Citizenship Education NGO Activist Program was high overall and we can see that it has a positive impact on competence.

*Global Citizen Competency: The ability to care about, understand, and act appropriately on global issues
*Career Development Capabilities: Measures job perceptions, expectations and value empathy for NGO activists

It was a meaningful education for me as I could sympathize with the stories of friends around the world in different circumstances and know how I could help them.

New changes came with the letter of hope

Joshua, who lives in the Philippines, injured his spine in a tree falling accident. I didn't receive adequate treatment for difficult family conditions, and my back was getting worse. Going to school or sleeping on the floor was not easy. The sharing, delivered to Joshua with the Hope Letter, gave Joshua a chance to dream again. After a successful spinal surgery, Joshua is undergoing rehabilitation and works hard at school. We look forward to seeing Joshua in a healthier way, and bringing her closer to the chef's dream.

After

Joshua in the Philippines looked much healthier than I expected and looked really happy. I could see by myself through Hope Corps activities that my hope letter was a stepping stone for someone's life. I hope to make a happy world with my friends all over the world while sharing hope.

Child Rights Advocacy

Good Neighbors conducted various Child Rights Advocacy activities such as public campaigns, policy proposals, seminars, and public relations to lead social interest in children's rights and eradicate child abuse. In 2017, Good Neighbors' efforts led to substantial revision of the law, such as the Amendment of the Special Act on the Punishment of Child Abuse Crimes, which passed the National Assembly's plenary session.

Infinite Challenge No. 1 Act passes the National Assembly plenary session

In March 2017, Good Neighbors appeared in the "MBC Infinite Challenge, National Assembly Special Episode" to inform viewers nationwide about the seriousness of child abuse and the necessity of mandatory parent education. Immediately after the broadcast, Good Neighbors' opinion was reflected in the amendment to the Special Act on Punishment for Child Abuse and passed the National Assembly's plenary session on the initiative of Representative Oh Shin-hwan. In the amendment, which is expected to be implemented in June 2018, a referral to the child protection order, which requires counseling and psychotherapy for abused children was added. We hope that the revised Exception Act will expand psychological and emotional support and strengthen professional services for abused children and their families.

Child · Youth Rights Advocacy Activities

Before the 19th presidential election, we delivered to the new government nine themes and detailed policies drawn from in-depth interviews with 27 students of a global leader team. The policy containing the voices of the students was introduced in the campaign "Talk, Talk, Talk, take care of the children!" In Busan, 231 youth councilors selected from 16 middle and high schools through the 'Active Youth Activist' program directly propose agenda items in the fields of youth education, safety, welfare, culture, etc. The policy suggestion activity was undertaken.

Public Campaign, We look for the '1 Million Child Abuse National Guard'.

In order to raise the public's interest in child abuse with the National Police Agency and the Central Children's Protection Agency, we launched a campaign to collect the 1 million Children's Abuse National Watch Group. The street campaign was led by children's protection agencies nationwide, and online and social media also participated in the campaign. The Children's Abuse National Surveillance Group immediately reports police suspects of suspected child abuse and promises to pay close attention to its policy to end child abuse.

Educational environment and teacher capacity support

In Nicaragua, Cristo Rei Elementary School lacked classrooms compared to the number of students, so that multiple classes were held at the same time in one classroom. Not only the classrooms, but also the space for teachers to prepare lessons, and the parishes to be used in classes were not enough. Good Neighbors Nicaragua has built four classrooms and a library so that students can study in a comfortable environment. In addition, we provided training such as how to teach classes, teaching methods, and teacher ethics to help teacher meet the needs of their students. The improved educational environment and increased teacher skills have led to improved student achievement.

Changes after educational facilities and teacher training support

It was great to be able to learn various teaching methods in the teacher training. I recently conducted a class using self-directed education. It helped my students develop their thinking skills, and it helped me a lot to guide them individually.

Promoting Access to Education Using Innovative Technologies

In order to increase children's access to education, education projects utilizing Information & Communication Technology (ICT) were conducted in Bangladesh, Tanzania and Paraguay. Good Neighbors Bangladesh is working with KOICA to develop educational programs using computers and tablets in eight regions to bridge regional gaps and foster future talent. Children learn about children's rights through the application and actively participate in classes. Some of the students participated in the activities of the Children's Rights Committee and held exhibitions by editing pictures and role-play videos taken with tablet PCs. In addition, in order to bridge the gap in ICT education between urban and rural areas, computer classes were conducted for teenagers who were not familiar with mouse clicks. Adolescents were able to learn the basic functions of a computer and participated in an in-depth course to help them develop their dreams.

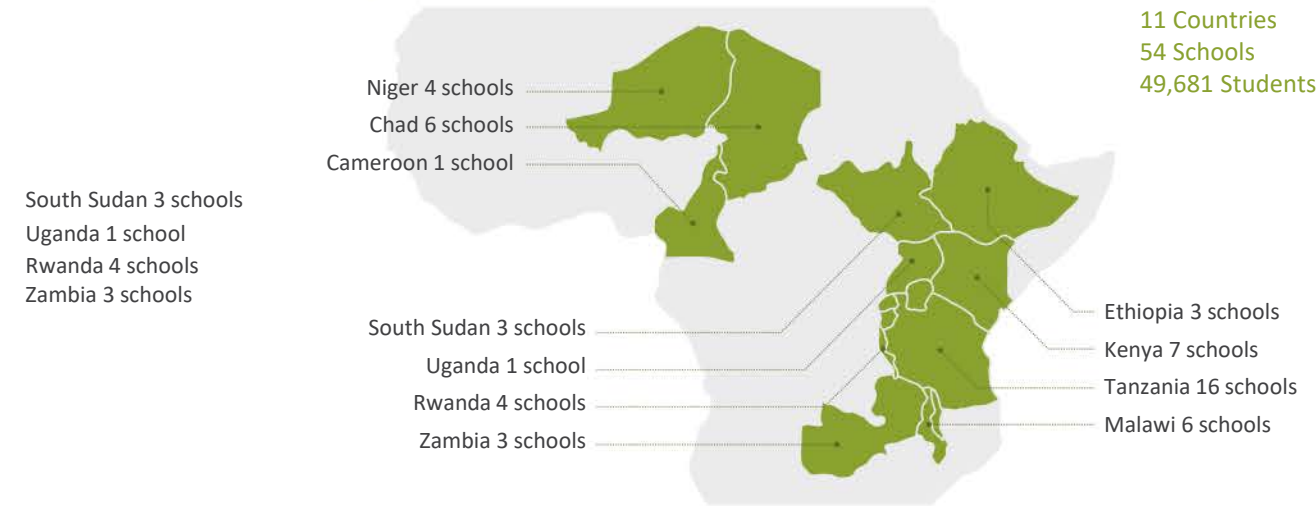

Where I lived, I never had a chance to see a machine like a computer, but in the mobile class, I was able to fully enjoy the tablet PC I wanted to learn. Children's rights can be learned through animations and pictures using a tablet PC, which makes it more fun and memorable.

Hope School
Preparing for the Future of Africa

Good Neighbors has been working on the Hope School Support Project since 2009 to improve Africa's poor educational environment. In 2017, we delivered hope to children at 54 Hope schools in 11 African countries and completed the establishment of Hope School 100th in Zanzibar, Tanzania with Hope TV SBS. In addition to building schools, Good Neighbors has conducted a variety of after-school activities that help raise awareness of children's rights, careers and citizenship. Hope School students will grow up as society members who self-selects their career and life goals, and becomes responsible members of their community beyond the school.

Good Neighbor Hope School Support Project Progress

'Hope Club', Yampiwi Hope School, where dreams are growing.

The Yampiwi Hope School in Malawi, built in 2013, is a place where 1,272 children within the region study and dream. Good Neighbors Malawi organized a Hope Club on campus to help students of the Yampiewi Hope School participate in education and activities on a variety of topics including child rights, AIDS and early marriage prevention, and career paths. Students who participated in clubs had lower rates of absenteeism than regular children. Not only career awareness, but also civic consciousness, and interest and educational support of their parents were relatively high, as well as career and citizenship.

Through Hope Club activities, our perceptions of early marriage and children's rights have changed, and we have learned that we should be able to protect our rights. I think I stepped more closer to my dream of being a teacher by sharing my worries about my career with my friends.

Health Hygiene

We make Healthy and
Clean daily life

In order to strengthen basic health care services, we have provided access to health care facilities and medicines, and increased access to the hygienic environment by installing drinking water sanitation facilities. We also led community involvement based on the activities of the local health center and the Water Sanitation Committee. In 2017, we strengthened the health care system to reduce the medical blind spots in the region, while expanding the activities of the Drinking Water Sanitation Committee to manage sustainable drinking water sanitation facilities.

Strengthening Maternal and Child Health Medical System

The Tanzania Kishapu region lacked basic health care facilities, especially the medical facilities, equipment and skilled workers enabling mothers to give birth safely. Good Neighbor Tanzania has renovated its existing local health care facilities and provided medicines and medical equipment to provide quality basic health care services to mothers, babies and local residents. In addition, we strengthened the maternal and child health care system in the region by nurturing local health centers and providing specialized training to cope with the risks that may arise during labor.

Sustainable Drinking-Water Hygienic Condition Changes

Tajikistan's only source of drinking water was the water channel contaminated with garbage. Local residents who drank dirty water from the waterways were suffering from waterborne diseases. Good Neighbor Tajikistan has installed drinking water facilities and cleaned up waterways with local residents to improve such unsanitary conditions that cause disease. In the process, they organized a drinking water hygiene committee consisting of local residents. The drinking water hygiene committee visited house to house to encourage participation in drinking water hygiene education and campaign activities, and organized hygiene seminars for children and local residents. In addition, we regularly inspect and manage drinking water facilities to ensure a stable supply of clean drinking water.

Change after improving drinking-water hygiene conditions

“To get clean water, I had to walk 2-3 kilometers a day or drink dirty water in waterway. With the help of Good Neighbors, we can now get clean water around us, and the number of people who complain of abdominal pain decreased. The drinking water sanitation committee encouraged participation from house to house, so local residents are actively involved in waterway cleaning and hygiene training, we can get clean water more reliably due to regular facility management.”

Union became a hope for the local economy

Despite the favorable conditions for cultivating highland crops in Vietnam's Quichen region, the majority of local residents in agriculture industry faced difficulties due to the lack of agricultural technology and the limitations of their distributors. Good Neighbors Vietnam organized a union for Quichen local residents to carry out the income increase project. The members purchased fertilizers and seeds with funded funds and participated in agricultural technology training to improve the quality of existing crops. We found that Korean native radish is suitable for cultivation in the Quichen region and high demand in the market through an analysis of agricultural environment and market research. After cultivating new crops reflecting the survey results, the production volume of crops increased and the quality of the products was recognized by 4 reliable buyer. As output and sales increased, members' incomes also increased.

Change after union support

Before we were supported by Good Neighbors, weeds were grown in arable land. Thanks to our union members and technical training, we are now packed with quality vegetables regardless of the season. My income increased as I learned where to sell the vegetables that I gave to me. Since joining the unions, our family and the community have come alive.

Union product brand launch

'MERRYCOOP' is an integrated brand of various products operated by the Good Neighbors Overseas Business Bureau according to the characteristics of each country and region. We increase the competitiveness of products produced by local residents in overseas countries and connect local sales channels to help local residents become independent. In 2017, the Mongolian Tuddils Union's cashmere and Kyrgyz Republic's Buguenets Union coasters were launched in Korea. The proceeds from the sale of the product were used for income, as well as for materials and equipment, as well as for technical training. The combination of the union and "MERRYCOOP" has been leading to revitalization of the local economy.

There was no place to sell even though we had felt technology, but we are so proud that we can sell our coasters to good neighbors in Korea. Since joining the union, I have been able to go through winter with richer diet than I had before because of increased income. Thanks to you. My husband has become a strong supporter.

Sharing, More than that

I joined the Neighbors Club to share 10% of the profits of family-run restaurants with children who need help in and outside Korea. We hope that sharing of our family will lead to someone's dreams and be a great help to our difficult neighbors.
